Signature Ed Parry
Postal Address Rhiw Bank Ave Colwyn Bay

Edward had an ability at and a love for football, and joined Colwyn Bay Colts in 1910 and played with them for 11 years. During that time Ted beame acknowledged as one of the best full baks in the region and was rewarded with an Amateur International call up for Wales as the archives tell.

Welsh Football Data Archives

The North Wales Coast League

Season 1920-21 was probably the best season the League ever experienced. There were 12 clubs in Division 1, and 14 in Division II.

Division I.— Holyhead, Holywell, Denbigh, Bangor, Blaenau Festiniog, Llandudno, Colwyn Bay, Conway, Caernarvon, Llanrwst, Portmadoc, Ogwen Valley.

Division II.— Llechid Celts, Glasinfryn Swifts, Abergele, Pemnaenmwr, Holyhead R.I.

Reserves, Bangor Athletic Reserves, Llanfairfechan, Caernarvon Athletic Res., Nantlle Vale, Menai Bridge, Llanberis Com-rades, Dolgarrog, Llangefni, Rhiwlas Athletic.

Mr. E. Bithell, of Colwyn Bay, was appointed Chairman, and the other officials remained as in the previous season. During this season the FAW played several international trial matches, and Messrs. Ted Parry, of Colwyn Bay, Jackie Jones, Abergele, C. Edwards, Holywell, and Idwal Davies, Conway, received their Amateur international caps. J. Neal of Llandudno and Bangor UCNW was selected as first reserve. Everton F.C. sent a strong team to Colwyn Bay on December 8th, 1920, to play a representative side of the League, and were successful by one goal to nil. The nett financial result of this match was a profit of £51 13s 1d. to the League.

Further acknowledgement came when he left Colwyn Bay and joined Liverpool on £5 per week.. The details below from the Liverpool FC Archives.

Edward was at the ripe age of 29 when he became a professional footballer having spent his playing days as an amateur in Colwyn Bay, Wales. He was an able full-back who was at Anfield for five years in the early 1920's but he only made 13 League appearances in all that time while playing in five internationals for Wales.

It was easier said than done to displace the outstanding trio of full-backs: Tommy Lucas, Donald Mackinlay and Ephraim Longworth. His Liverpool debut came against Derby County towards the end of the 1920/21 season but he hardly got a look-in as successive League Championships were won in 1922 and 1923.

In the second of those title-winning seasons, ten men played in at least 37 of the 42 League games so the team almost picked itself. After spending the majority of his Liverpool career as captain of the Central league side he moved to third division Walsall at 33 years of age before returning to Colwyn Bay.

When Ted's professional footballing career ended at Walsall in 1927, he was already in love with Frances Jones, whom he married in the summer of 1927. In the following year Joan Evelyn Parry was born and at some point they set up home in Colwyn Bay as Ted resumed playing football for Colwyb Bay United and Llandudno Town before his career ended in 1933.

In 1948 Ted took on the coaching role at Colwyn Bay and was also captain of Colwyn Bay Golf Club (whilst his brothers were captains at Abergele and Rhos-on-Sea).

After his footballing days were over, he ran a painting and decorating company (Parry & Williams) and employed a number of other painters, the connection to which as can be seen in the 1911 census where a number of boarders with the family were painters.

Marriage to Frances Jones 1927
